

April 6, 2006

Just like the "factory towns" of old, Wal-Mart wants to have its hand in every piece of the pie - and its next move is managing your money.

Last September, Wal-Mart unveiled plans for the "Bank of Wal-Mart": an enormous power play to boost Wal-Mart's domination of our economy by creating one of the largest financial institutions in the country.

Together with the former and current Chairs of the Federal Reserve and over 50 members of Congress from both sides of the aisle, we rang the alarm bell and together we forced the FDIC to extend the public comment period and hold hearings on this important decision.

Wal Mart is a corrupt unfeeling corporation and all efforts should be made to hold it accountable!!

craig mckerley